Solutions 5 Small Business Coaching

There are many definitions of business coaching and the line between coaching and consulting is blurred regularly. As I describe what we are and why we are passionate about it, I would like to first describe what we are not.

- We are not the experts in your particular business coming in to tell you how you should be running it!! If you're still in business, you have a pretty good idea what you are doing.
- We are not a magician that can fix everything and get you in that Astin Martin DB9 in our first week working together.

- We are not you're new employee that you can delegate everything you don't want to do or have put off doing (this is not black and white but instead our preference is to help you get it right yourself, rather than create a dependent relationship, where you depend on us to perform a specific role in your business).

On the other hand we are;

- Experienced master business coaches with access to many resources and a proven set of systems and tools who will facilitate a process that will help you create lasting improvements in your business.

The Process

We will facilitate and guide you through a proven system that will help you step out of your business long enough to work out what needs doing, plan to do it and then will help you make sure you get the things done – so you make consistent progress toward you outcome and make the changes to your business that need to be made.
